FOOD COUNCIL ANNOUNCES SECOND ANNUAL LOSS PREVENTION SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

TRENTON, NJ...Linda Doherty, President of the New Jersey Food Council (NJFC), announced the launch of the 2nd Annual Loss Prevention Scholarship Program to benefit loss prevention professionals of NJFC member companies. The program offers loss prevention solution vendors the opportunity to fund continuing education for NJFC loss prevention associates through the Loss Prevention Foundation. Ms. Doherty stated, "We are tremendously pleased to bring back this effective program for a second year thanks to the commitment of Security Resources, Inc., Cambridge Security Services, Eastern Security Corp., Agilence Inc. & the Corrective Education Company in sponsoring these scholarships for our member's loss prevention associates. Their commitment exhibits great dedication to furthering the practice of loss prevention and provides a valuable benefit to our members."

"The NJ Food Council was the first state council in the United States to incorporate this type of loss prevention scholarship program last year. We are pleased to support their vision to provide the best loss prevention education possible to its members. " stated Gene Smith, president of The Loss Prevention Foundation.

Ms. Doherty announced there are four scholarships available, Security Resources Inc. is sponsoring a LPC Scholarship, and Cambridge Security Services, Eastern Security Corp., Agilence, and the Corrective Education Company are sponsoring LPQ Scholarships. Scholarships will fund courses administered through the Loss Prevention Foundation which are considered to be the benchmark of loss prevention education and are college accredited. "These courses will allow our members to provide industry leading training to loss prevention associates and lend to the overall benefit and advancement of loss prevention in the N.J. food industry," Ms. Doherty added.

The New Jersey Food Council is the Garden State's food industry trade association with almost 400 members representing over 1,200 retail food stores, wholesalers, manufacturing and service companies that supply them.
